

World News Briefs

WASHINGTON, July 1 (Reuters) — A United States Representative said today that it was unnecessary for the United States to fly U-2 surveillance planes from Turkey in order to monitor Soviet compliance with the SALT II agreement. Representative Les Aspin, Democrat of Wisconsin, who is interested in military affairs and chairman of the House Intelligence Oversight Subcommittee, said secret testimony showed that information on Soviet tests of new missiles could be collected better through other means.